

Falcone To Be Arraigned In Double Slaying Bangor Suspect Is Arrested By Police Chief At Wind Gap

Four Dead, Seven Missing As Floods Sweep Pecos Valley

ROSSELL, N. M., Oct. 7 (AP)—Four were drowned, three were presumed dead and seven persons were missing tonight in savage flash floods which battered an 80-mile stretch of the rich irrigated Pecos Valley in southern New Mexico.

Officials tonight could not stop to estimate the damage, which obviously will run into millions.

Sheriff Harry Puryear reported the body of the fourth identified victim of the Pecos Valley's worst flood disaster in years was recovered late today five miles west of Roswell.

Puryear said he was James T. McCutcheon, an employee of the New Mexico Transportation Co. in Roswell. Still missing is Frank Thomas, also a bus company employee.

The sheriff said McCutcheon and Thomas were swept off the highway by flood waters of the Barendo River in a pickup truck. The two men were going to the aid of overdue buses.

Rains continued throughout the day in the mountains west of the Pecos Valley Arroyos and streams erupted streams of dirty brown water to feed the swelling Pecos and inundate parts of five towns.

Four bodies have been recovered. A farmer told of watching three others drown as he stood helplessly by. Seven other still are unaccounted for.

For more than 12 hours National Guardsmen, volunteers, city officials and city crews tried to halt a raging tide that roared toward Roswell. They almost succeeded at the Hondo Reservoir 12 miles west of the city, but the water rose over flood gates and raced unimpeded into town.

The 27-foot crest struck the west side of Roswell and raced through city streets, knocking over trees and moving cars.

Roswell was standing by for a fresh assault as water continued to pour into town. Hagerman and Dexter, the worst hit communities about 13 miles downstream, were still fighting the flood waters and looking for their dead tonight.

Artesia was flooded and evacuating some areas, but no water forced its way into the business section. One residential area was half flooded and 30 homes evacuated. Carlbad was standing by.

The Red Cross in St. Louis announced it had dispatched six national disaster workers to Roswell. The Red Cross placed the number of Roswell homeless at 200.

The evacuees were sheltered in the New Mexico Military Institute and Roswell High School. Red Cross, the Fourth Army, and Walker Air Force Base provided food and cots.

Hanoi Awaits Arrival Of Reds

HANOI, Indochina, Oct. 7 (AP)—This ancient city, once one of the brightest jewels in France's colonial crown, suddenly awaits the arrival tomorrow of Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh's army.

Early in the morning, Communist-led Vietnamese forces will march into Hanoi as French troops begin to pull back toward Haiphong on the coast. The Vietnamese take over under the Geneva truce agreement will be gradual. By Sunday night, under the eyes of a tripartite international commission, the victors of Dien Bien Phu will have total possession.

Drawn Window Shade Foils Three Bandits To Plot To Rob Bank Vault Of $200,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP)—A drawn window shade and a daring policeman today blocked an attempt by three men to rob a Queens bank of $200,000.

Patrolman John Mullins, who had been guarding a school crossing, captured one man at gunpoint. The other two escaped, one on foot and one in an automobile, dodging pistol fire by Mullins.

Police attempted to determine whether there was any connection between the 8:25 a.m. robbery attempt and a $97,000 robbery of a Mount Vernon, N.Y., bank in a similar manner two weeks ago.

The drawn shade on the rear door of the Laurelton branch of the Ridgewood Savings Bank in a residential section of Queens was a prearranged signal to warn incoming employees if something was amiss.

Easton C.L.U. Delays Action On Chest Aid

EASTON YESTERDAY felt repercussions of the Community Chest-Central Labor Union dispute in Stroudsburg.

CLU had voted to withhold support of the Chest in Monroe County because the YMCA is one of the agencies which receives Chest funds. The union has accused YMCA directors of "anti-union" activity because non-union plumbers and electricians worked on the new YMCA building.

Easton's CLU Wednesday night voted to delay formal action on supporting the Easton Community Chest.

In Easton, as in Stroudsburg, the Y gets Chest funds. Easton CLU asked Claude T. Haupt Jr., Chest campaign chairman there, to approach the national YMCA to learn if it could do something to resolve the dispute in Stroudsburg.

Members of the Easton group voted to withhold support, or withdrawal of support, until they hear a report on this attempt.

The Chest board of directors—of which Haupt is not a member—met last night. It issued no report on whether it intends to contact the national YMCA.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, which is currently picketing the Stroudsburg Y, is actually an Easton local, with headquarters in that city, but with jurisdiction over Monroe County.

Unemployment Dips 146,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—The government today reported a 146,000 decline among unemployed in September, bringing the nation's jobless total to 2,099,000.

Although it was not brought out in a joint report by the Commerce and Labor Departments, a comparison of the official monthly figures showed this to be the lowest total since January.

However, the September figure is more than double the 1,521,000 unemployed in September last year.

Secretary of Commerce Weeks and Secretary of Labor Mitchell said in their joint statement that "the job picture remained stable" in September with a continuing gradual decline in unemployment.

The total of those employed declined a bit, too—dropping 132,000 to 62,145,000. Nearly a million teen-age students left the labor force to return to school, and nearly as many women reentered the labor force as school teachers and as helpers on the farm during the harvest season.

Witness Links Congressman To FHA Deal

By WILMOT HERCHER
WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—Rep. Prince H. Preston (D-Ga.) was described to Senate investigators today as a hidden stockholder in a firm which netted $143,000 on an initial investment of $7,000 in a government-insured housing project.

William A. Bowen, mayor of Statesboro, Ga., Preston's home town, testified that he held for the congressman a one-third interest in Bowen-Sundy Enterprises, which obtained an FHA-insured mortgage for construction of the Nelson Apartments in Savannah, Ga., in 1950.

When the project was almost completed, Bowen told the Senate Banking Committee, Bowen-Sundy Enterprises sold its stock to Byck-Worrell, the construction company, for $150,000.

He reported that Preston, James L. Sundy and himself each received a net profit of about $47,600 on individual investments approximating $2,333.

Anticipating Bowen's testimony, Preston said in Statesboro last night that the investigating committee, headed by Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.), was trying "to make political capital on the eve of the November election of a legitimate business enterprise."

"I assure you that at no time did I use my office to influence any official," he said in a speech in which he accepted nomination for a fifth term in the House from the 1st District Democratic convention.

"There was not one federal dollar involved and there was no guarantee of any loan by the government."

In another development before the committee, Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Young announced the government intends to assess additional taxes against multimillion-dollar "windfall" profits made by promoters of many postwar housing projects.

Lattimore Indicted On Red Count

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—A federal grand jury today accused Owen Lattimore of falsely denying under oath that he had been "a follower of the Communist line" and a "promoter of Communist interests."

The controversial Far Eastern affairs specialist promptly issued a statement saying he always has been a loyal American who followed the "dictates of my own conscience and not the commands of any foreign system."

The new two-count indictment was obtained by the government after the courts voided the cornerstone count of an earlier indictment. This alleged Lattimore had never been a sympathizer or any other kind of promoter of communism for Red interests.

Nowhere in the new indictment did the word "sympathizer" appear. The U. S. Court of Appeals in a decision last July said this word, as used in the earlier indictment, was too vague.

U. S. Atty. Leo A. Rover told reporters he will move later to consolidate the new indictment with the five remaining counts of the original true bill.

Premier Urges Assembly To Vote Approval

PARIS, Oct. 7 (AP)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France today threw his popularity and prestige squarely on the parliamentary scales in favor of rearming West Germany under the nine-nation London agreements.

At the end of an hour-long appeal to the National Assembly, the Premier appeared to have tilted the balance strongly in his favor for the first vote which will probably come tomorrow night.

Prominent Socialist and Popular Republican (MRP) deputies predicted Mendes-France will get between 330 and 380 votes, well over the 214 absolute majority.

In a careful, restrained report on the London negotiations, the Premier urged the Assembly—which killed the European army plan (EDC)—to endorse German entry into an integrated defense force under a revived Brussels Treaty and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Adenauer Wins Support For Arms Policy

BONN, Germany, Oct. 7 (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer tonight won overwhelming parliamentary support for his policy of bringing a "med West Germany into the Western Alliance."

In an uncounted show of hands, the majority of the Bundestag (lower house) accepted the London agreement to allow Bonn to raise 12 divisions and an air force as member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The vote amounted to a vote of confidence for Adenauer's policy and a swift answer to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's latest bid to block West German rearmament by dangling new hopes of German reunification.

The West German Socialists, who have 151 seats in the 487-member chamber, voted against the motion.

Boys Confess Tomato Tossing

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP)—Four high school boys confessed today that they threw tomatoes Tuesday night at Sen. Irving M. Ives, Republican candidate for governor of New York.

Principal Albert B. Scholl of Watertown High School said the boys had given him a signed statement apologizing to Ives for the "thoughtless act."

Ives, whose reaction Tuesday night was "I was hit by the tomatoes," came by indirectness straight from Tammany Hall. The Democratic camp in Manhattan, told a newsman in Auburn that the boys were "wholly forgiven."

The tomatoes did not hit Ives. Some juice splattered his wife and spotted Ives' hat.

Escapes Damage

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 7 (AP)—The island of Aruba off the northern coast of Venezuela escaped damage from hurricane Hazel today as the center of the 115-mile-an-hour tropical storm passed about 60 miles north of that important Dutch possession.

President To Step Up Plans For Political Campaigning

DENVER, Oct. 7 (AP)—President Eisenhower, heading party calls for help, decided today to step up his personal campaign for a Republican Congress by making at least one more major political address than he had planned.

The chief executive will go that far, Vice President Nixon announced at the Denver White House after conferring with Eisenhower, but still is determined to do no barnstorming for individual GOP candidates in the November election.

And Nixon told a news conference that in his opinion the President has been and will continue to play "exactly the right role" in what several GOP leaders have termed a tough fight to maintain Republican control of Congress.

The vice president said it would be a mistake for Eisenhower to get "personally involved" in any intraparty feuds over candidates by barnstorming for individuals. He said that would smack of the "purge idea" and would do the party more harm than good.

Nixon agreed it's a difficult battle for the Republicans, but expressed confidence his party will win. He declared the campaign the Democrats are waging would take the country "back to the days when the Communist danger was ignored—back to the days of the red herring."

His "red herring" remark was an indirect criticism of the Truman administration's handling of the subversion problem.

The decision for the President to make at least one more major speech than the two already announced undoubtedly won't satisfy all hands—particularly GOP candidates whose pleas he answered would take him into several states between now and Nov. 2, election day.

Eisenhower will make a nationwide television-radio address tomorrow night, the first of the three major speeches he now is planning. He and Nixon will speak at a big political rally in the 6,000-seat Denver Municipal Auditorium, and similar GOP "precinct workers day" rallies all over the country will be tuned in.

As previously announced, the President will make another nationwide TV-radio address Nov. 1, election eve.

Slayer Kills Himself In Cell

SCRANTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—Chester Rutan hanged himself in his cell today a few hours before he was to have been arraigned for the killing of his wife, Arlene.

After being questioned by state police last night, the 45-year-old truck driver was placed in the Blakely borough jail, five miles north of Scranton.

Police Capt. Thomas Parry said Rutan appeared to be asleep on his cot when he looked into the cell at 2 a.m. Parry returned three hours later and found the prisoner hanging from a crossbar. Rutan had made a noose from his shirt.

Rutan and his wife, 38, lived in nearby Clarks Summit. They had no children.

Dist. Atty. Carlton M. O'Malley said Rutan admitted the slaying.

Polio Strikes 230

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 7 (AP)—Medical experts expressed bafflement today as to the cause of the unprecedented polio epidemic here which now has stricken 230 Leon County citizens.

Hid Out In Woods Before Capture By Wind Gap Cop

ACCUSED OF A DOUBLE murder, Daniel Falcone slept the sleep of utter exhaustion in a cell at Carbon County Jail last night.

It was 7 p.m.—10 hours after his capture by Police Chief William Templeton on a street in Wind Gap.

Falcone slept in a locked cell alone on the second floor of the jail in Jim Thorpe.

Outside the cell a trooper remained alert against any attempt by the State's prisoner to short-circuit the course of justice.

There had been no interrogation throughout the day, no probing knife-edged questions on the circumstances surrounding the shooting of Justice of the Peace Matthew Daneker, 38, and his wife Mildred, 36, in front of a Palmerton church Sunday night.

The 31-year-old Bangor man was too weak for anything but sleep, the prison warden said.

He had arrived at the jail at noon guarded by Lehigh County troopers.

Under their eyes he was registered in the jail index. They watched while he shaved and took a shower. They looked on silently while the warden, a soft-spoken man, brought Falcone a bowl of hot soup, bread and butter and coffee.

The prisoner appeared to relish the food—the first he had in almost four days, outside of a glass of milk given him at the Bethlehem police barracks.

Then Falcone was allowed to go to sleep.

He will be formally arraigned, possibly today, on a charge of murder. District Atty. Carl A. Niehoff of Carbon County reported.

Ironically, his capture 20 miles from Palmerton came on the day Mr. and Mrs. Daneker were buried.

He looked better than he had 10 hours earlier when he was spotted on old Allentown Road in Wind Gap.

Monroe Cooperative Dairy milkman David Young of Gilbert had just delivered milk at the Harry Sargent home. He came out and climbed in his truck.

About 40 feet ahead he saw a seedy looking man, stubbled and disheveled, in a gray jacket and dark pants, hatless. A car moved along the road toward the man—and he turned and ran into the woods alongside the road.

This confirmed the milkman's hunch. He drove his truck ahead, halted it in front of the spot where Falcone had disappeared and looked about. He saw nothing.

He turned the truck and delivered the quota of milk at Haney's drugstore. Young came out of the store and saw a State police car going by. He flagged it down. "I saw Falcone down the Allentown Road. He ran into the woods." The description checked, and the trooper sped off toward Allentown Road.

Young drove on, prepared to deliver milk to Wind Gap school. He saw borough Police Chief Templeton going into the post office. Young went inside after him and told him about Falcone.

Templeton had spent three days making dry runs on tips which evaporated. This time, he said—he had a peculiar feeling about it. "It could be," he said.

He enlisted the help of Justice of the Peace Rush Bowers. The two jumped in the squad car and started toward Allentown Road.

Meanwhile on West St., Bernard Gist of Bangor, an oil burner repair and service man, was winding up a job at a residence. He was standing by his truck when a stubble-bearded man walked up and pointed toward Cole's television, electric appliance and grocery store on the corner of West and Broadway.

"Is that the town hall?" the man asked Gist.

Gist whitened. He recognized Falcone. It was easy enough.

for Gist had worked as Falcone's helper in the Belvidere celanese factory some years earlier. Gist hoped Falcone didn't recognize him.

"Nope," Gist said shortly, and made for the house he had just come out of, there to try to telephone police.

Falcone walked into the Cole store, and approached Mrs. Steve Fedon, the operator.

"A pack of cigarettes, please," he said, and laid a quarter on the counter. Mrs. Fedon recognized Falcone from his picture in the papers, his scratched and brambled skin and disheveled, thinning hair.

As she turned to get the cigarettes she nudged young John Florio of Pen Argyl with her foot. He moved over slightly and continued reading the sports page of his newspaper without looking up.

Mrs. Fedon handed Falcone the cigarettes, and a pack of matches. "I'll pay for the matches," he said. "That's all right, they come with the cigarettes," Mrs. Fedon said. "It's cold this morning, isn't it?"

"Yes, it's pretty cool," said Falcone, who had spent the chill night in the woods without cover.

He turned and left the store. As he neared the door Mrs. Fedon whispered fiercely "That's Falcone!"

Florio looked up long enough to see the back of Falcone's head disappearing through the door, then grunted and returned to reading the sports page.

Mrs. Fedon walked to the front of the store to see where her grimy customer had gone. He had reached the opposite corner. Templeton's car pulled up in front of a neatly-trimmed hedge and slammed to a stop. The chief had spotted his man coming out of Cole's.

"I stopped about 25 feet ahead of him. That would give me a chance to see what he was doing."

"I got out one side, Bowers the other. He just stopped in his tracks. I pulled my gun and rushed him. I got my hands on him and felt a gun under his jacket."

"I pulled up the jacket and took the gun out of where it was stuck in his belt. A .22 pistol. Then I handcuffed him and searched him. He didn't have anything else but a wallet with about $100 in it," Templeton said.

"I put him in the back and got in with him. Bowers drove. I figured the safest place would be at the Bethlehem barracks so that's where we headed."

The chief said he asked Falcone no questions on the way, and Falcone asked only one question: about a mile down the highway he inquired, "Are they still alive?" Templeton said no, they were "both dead."

"He didn't say anything, but he reacted as if he'd been hoping they weren't," Templeton said.

At Bethlehem barracks Falcone was stripped and his clothes thoroughly searched. They were torn from brush and briars; his skin was lacerated and his feet badly blistered, the chief said.

The prisoner said he'd walked all the way from Palmerton—perhaps more than 20 miles—through the woods and over the mountain ridges. He'd eaten nothing, had talked to no one since Sunday night.

Police gave him a glass of milk. He wanted no more. Templeton said, had no appetite. He was finger-printed and processed. Then he waited briefly for Lehigh County troopers to arrive. It was their case.

Templeton turned over his prisoner about 11:30 and the troopers took Falcone to Jim Thorpe. Today the long questioning will start.

In Palmerton, the murdered couple were buried after more than a thousand friends, relatives, and curious people had filed past their bier.

University Takes Action Against Eight

LEWISBURG, Oct. 7 (AP)—Bucknell University today took disciplinary action against eight male students who participated in mass demonstrations against a university ban on intoxicants in fraternity houses.

One student was expelled, three were suspended and an additional four were placed on "strict probation" by a three-man disciplinary committee made up of Dr. William H. Coleman, Dr. Raymond L. Ranck, and Malcolm E. Musser, dean of men.

The school withheld the names of the students against whom the action was taken.

The disciplinary measure was brought on by a demonstration Monday night by 300 male students on a Lewisburg street corner protesting the university ban. State police broke up the meeting.

Later that same night some 750 male students of the school's total enrollment of more than 1,900 staged a second mass demonstration on the campus and then paraded to the center of town. State police again broke up the demonstration. They danced around a bonfire on

Calling All Inventors

The National Inventors Council has done it now. It has come right out and said that it needs defense inventions and urged the public to send 'em in. Even gave its address in Washington.

Asking Americans to submit inventions is like encouraging them to write songs or poetry. Practically every American thinks he is an undiscovered genius in one of those fields.

The Inventors Council might as well brace itself for the deluge. It gave a list of things that it needs, ranging from an efficient "death ray" gun to a way to so-

No Second Best

When Admiral Arthur W. Radford told a recent convention of Texas oil men that there is no substitute for success in war, he was voicing what is undoubtedly an undeniable truth, but one which is often forgotten by the average citizen.

"Second best is to be defeated," the chairman of the Joint Chief of Staffs said, "and military defeat carries with it national disaster, political, economic, social and spiritual."

The admiral's argument before the convention was that this country cannot depend on anything less than the best fighting machine in the world and that it is up to all of us to realize the fact and to so govern ourselves as to provide it.

His realistic approach to a very real problem is not the sudden spurt in defense measures or the equally sudden cessation of such activities, but a "cruising speed" of George Sokolsky Says...

Nothing Will Be Done About Wire Taps Because So Many In Washington Use It

In a colloquy between Senator Herman Welker and Senator Guy M. Gillette, the following came out:

"Mr. Welker, I believe the distinguished and able Senator from Iowa, when he was chairman of the subcommittee on the subject of the 'leaks' He heard someone approach the door. The Senator from Iowa tiptoes up, jerked open the door, and then discovered, as I recall, someone who was at least more than casually interested in our executive hearings. Is that a correct statement?"

"Mr. Gillette, Mr. President, that is a correct statement."

It would seem that a government could so organize itself that neither in the Executive nor the Legislative Branch would there be leaks. Apparently all governments are having the same troubles. The French are in the midst of a scandal arising from leaks to the Communists by officials on a high level. No matter how the Maclean-Burgess situation is covered up by the British, the fact stands that in spite of their long traditions and high quality civil service, leaks have occurred in the British Foreign Office and it was a British subject, Dr. Klaus Fuchs, who leaked the atom bomb to the Rosenberg spy ring. Dr. Otto John who, as early as June 1952, was known to be a Soviet Secret Agent and lidity snow. But it will get everything from atom-powered whammies to rare vitamins.

Still, if it can wade through the flood, it may find what it wants. Americans are among the world's best inventors, and some of the most important developments have hatched in the minds of average citizens.

We have an outstanding example of that type of inventive genius right here in our friend and neighbor Belmont W. Bell, of Mountainhome, who has just won a patent on a wheel balancing attachment for automobiles.

preparedness for the long pull, whereby we maintain a level of military strength which will preclude a sudden and devastating attack on our land.

Even as he was speaking, Secretary of Defense Wilson was telling newsmen in Washington that our Navy soon may add an atomic-powered aircraft carrier to join the atomic submarines, one of which has already joined the fleet and another of which is in process of construction.

Apparently the men who head our defense program are not going to permit the pacifistically inclined members of our citizenry to soft-talk the rest of us into a supine attitude of non-preparedness. This is as it should be, and while we all decry the huge expenditures necessary to build and support an adequate force, we would decry even more a weakening of our strength with its consequent invitation to total disaster.

Looking At Life

"VIP" Hunters Today Are Pretty Pitiful People

It was quite amusing the other day, to see what FAME really is like.

Secretary Dulles arrived at London's airport for his flight back to the United States. Two hundred youngsters broke out cheering, clapping, jumping and going crazy in general as he appeared.

Dulles felt quite flattered. He must be quite some guy, he thought, if he could get teen-agers so excited about him.

His smugness didn't last long, however. Those youngsters were shouting "We want Frankie!" whereas his name is John.

Then somebody nudged him. There was Frankie Laine, the crooner, coming down the gangplank of another plane.

Dulles—a VIP, if there ever was one, didn't mean anything to those kids. He was trying only to change the course of the world. But Laine, the dispenser of those golden notes, HE was their real hero, their knight in shining armor.

"Such is fame," said Dulles to a friend—and fortunately he was a big enough man to take it good-naturedly. Someone less entitled to the "VIP" cognomen might have suffered a terrific hurt to his self-esteem.

"VIP"—very important person!

How important is anybody? What does importance mean? How important is importance?

With all due respect to Frankie Laine, I am quite sure that in another 10 or 15 years he will be forgotten. "Who was Frankie Laine?" the youngsters of 1969 will ask. They will screech and scream for some other tenor, some other dispenser of sad love songs.

On the other hand, I am quite sure that in 50 or maybe 100 years from now John Foster Dulles' name will be recorded in the history books as that of a man who helped to lead us either into peace or to war—whichever way this mess is going to turn out.

But even then Dulles will have only a short paragraph in those history books, perhaps only a couple of lines. That is fame, that is what it means to be a celebrity.

Yet, just look how many people are wasting their lives trying either to be celebrities or to get to know celebrities.

I am always reminded of Mr. & Mrs. Leo Hunter, those two characters in Dickens' "Pickwick Papers," who were always trying to cultivate the social lions of their day and to make the acquaintance of all of London's celebrities in order to lend lustre to their own parties.

Celebrity-hunters par excellence, they were the 19th century prototype of all the autograph collectors and café society of our own time.

Just to be a "celebrity," a "VIP," a "VIP" herself, Mrs. Hunter wrote the immortal "Ode to an Expired Frog."

The immortal, it did not do her much good. All she did was to make herself ridiculous. Just as, at least as far as I am concerned, the "VIP" hunters of today are pretty pitiful specimens of society.

(And I request the typesetter to spell "society" with a small s.)

Orson Bean, who is a very droll fellow, and who can transform an ordinary newspaper into the darndest eulucypstic tree you ever saw, served a hitch as "answer man" for a smalltown newspaper during a summer vacation from college. Orson, who identifies himself as "Haxvard '48, Yale, 6," was almost caught out on a limb by the correspondent who demanded, "Where can alligators be found?"

He is so right about that, but nothing will be done because so many who could do something about it use wiretaps and monitor calls. The law requires a beep when the call is taken down by an instrument. What is the difference between taking it down mechanically or by a stenographer's hand? There are all sorts of devices on the market for such purposes and they are so inexpensive that there must be quite a number of buyers of them.

Robert S. Allen Reports

McCarthy Set For Double Barrelled Filibuster

Washington, October 8—Senator Joe McCarthy's fight against censure will last a lot longer and be far more extensive and turbulent than he has given any hint of so far.

He is secretly organizing what amounts, in effect, to a double-barrelled filibuster, one in the Senate, and another in the country at large.

In the Senate, the aim of the embattled Wisconsinite is to drag out the discussion of his case for weeks; if possible, into the new Congress that convenes after the first of the year.

Outside the Senate, McCarthy supporters, at the same time, will conduct a militant mail and pressure drive in his behalf. The plan is to bombard the Senate, White House and other directly-interested quarters with torrents of letters and telegrams from every section.

McCarthy has a list of 14 Republican senators who he believes will help him stage a protracted "talkathon." So far, he is counting on no Democrats. The only one he was certain of was Senator Pat McCarran, who died suddenly last week.

A significant tip-off on McCarthy's aggressive preparations to avert censure came from Senator Herman Welker (R., Idaho).

Welker and Senator William Jenner (R., Ind.), another warm McCarthy supporter, attended McCarthy's funeral. Afterwards they conferred with Senate Republican Leader William Knowland (Calif.). Later, on the plane carrying the returning Senate delegation, Welker forecast a long debate lasting weeks and, possibly, several months.

He also expressed firm belief that the Senate will not be kept in round-the-clock sessions, as was done in August during the bitter fight over the new atomic energy law.

Senator Jenner was equally positive that the GOP Policy Committee will keep hands off the censure issue. Jenner, a member of this influential group, was certain it will rule against making the controversy a party matter and will leave Republican senators free to vote their personal views.

Welker told the other home-bound senators that the refusal of Republican leaders to use McCarthy in the close election battle is hurting the party.

Both Jenner and Welker stated they will talk for McCarthy in the Senate debate as often as he asks them to. Jenner was more cautious than Welker in estimating the length of this fight.

Welker declared that McCarthy feels a prolonged discussion is necessary for two reasons: to fully present his evidence and arguments, and to arouse favorable public sentiment.

It was indicated that the opening gun in this counter-offensive was the voluminous "Bill of Exceptions" that has been filed by McCarthy's attorney against the censure report of the special committee. Other blasts of this kind will be issued between now and November 8, when the Senate reconvenes.

The lawyer's brief is being widely circulated by McCarthy partisans.

Note: Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson, Tex., is saying privately he has no intention of seeking a party stand on McCarthy. "We don't have to do that," explains Johnson. "We will consider all the evidence, but we Democrats have been fighting McCarthyism for a long time."

Foreign flashes — Top naval officers of the new Southeast Asia defense alliance will meet next month, for the first time since SEATO was organized. The conference, probably in Hongkong, was initiated by U. S. naval authorities to consider a number of operational problems. . . . U. S. authorities are considering giving Brazil a new loan. Backstage talks on that were begun by Finance Minister Eugenio Gudin during the recent Washington meeting of the International Monetary Fund. The Brazilian government is having a difficult time dealing with the serious financial difficulties inherited from the late President Vargas. The U. S. is willing to help out, as it needs Brazilian support in the United Nations and in Latin American affairs. Big difficulty is that Brazil is already heavily in debt, owing more than $1,000,000,000 in foreign loans. . . . A significant unpublished report has come from Swiss members of the Neutral Nations Armistice Inspection Committee in Korea. According to the Swiss, the Chinese, for the first time, have moved a large amount of heavy military equipment from North Korea back into Manchuria. Included in these arms were four trainloads of tanks, large-caliber artillery, anti-aircraft guns and recoilless rifles. If the report is true, the withdrawal could be for the purpose of reinforcing the Reds' intensifying attacks against the Nationalist-held islands off the Chinese mainland.

Safety Is Big Business

—by H. G. Heller

Safety is big business.

It will cost a half million dollars for five days to keep you from killing yourself.

What that amounts to is this. The money will be spent by the National Safety Council and by 17,000 delegates to the 42nd National Safety Congress and Exposition in Chicago, starting on Monday, October 18.

Representing this region which is covered by the Lehigh Valley Safety Council will be Harold A. Seward, secretary-treasurer of the council and Mrs. George F. Wilson, vice president of the Women's division.

This regional council, incidentally, is the oldest local safety council in existence. It was founded in 1913 and has had delegates to the National Congress for the past 40 years.

The council will attract safety and health experts from all over the world to study methods of preventing accidents in all walks of life.

The convention costs are a mere drop-in-the-bucket, however, compared to our annual national accident bill—which last year cost $9,700,000,000.

The specialists in accident prevention in industry, on the highway, in schools, homes and farm will trade tips on safety problems as modern as atomic energy and jet aircraft and as old as walking across the street and climbing a ladder.

Each of the 200 program sessions crammed into six big hotels will be devoted to reducing the toll of accidents.

Last year the toll was 95,000 dead and 9,600,000 injured. All of this effort, again, is for the purpose of keeping all of us alive.

It is one of the most unusual things in the world that so many experts spend so much money to save other people, when so few of these "other people" often do so little to save themselves and an economic loss running close to $10 billions.

Take that $10 billions—which we could easily do if we did something for ourselves in the matter of safety—and see how many miles of good roads we could build, how many new schools, parks, playgrounds, civic and cultural centers you could build in all the "Stroudsburgs" and "Monroe County's" of the country.

The halfmillion dollar safety council convention in Chicago will come up with some answers to saving that tremendous amount of money—we can have it if we listen to the advice of the safety experts.

McCarthy Not Much Of Issue In Wisconsin's Election

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 7 (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy is almost a non-existent issue in his home state election this year—most of the talk is about jobs and dairy prices.

Some Democrats, notably the candidate for governor and one for Congress, are telling the voters McCarthy really is quite an issue. But they don't seem to be convincing many people in a state that isn't electing a senator this year. Here in what the auto tags proclaim as "Dairyland," there is more concern about milk checks and employment. Both of them are down in spots.

Correspondingly, Democratic hopes are up, because of an expected ballot box reaction from farmers and organized labor and a record Democratic vote in the Sept. 14 primary.

The major prizes in Wisconsin are the governorship and 10 House seats. All the incumbents are running—GOP Gov. Walter J. Kohler for a third term, and eight Republican and two Democratic Congressmen.

"So far as I can detect," Kohler said in an interview, "McCarthy is no issue at all."

From William Proxmire, the 38-year-old printing company executive the Democrats picked to run against Kohler, there is a somewhat different slant. In a separate interview, Proxmire said several national issues figure in the gubernatorial contest and McCarthy is one of them, for two reasons:

"First," he said, "we recognize that a Democratic victory would be about as serious a blow to McCarthy as he could sustain, outside of defeat for himself. "Second, the governor has been a constant, if not warm, supporter of McCarthy and never has publicly criticized Joe. He has called Joe an asset to the party. In August, 1952, when McCarthy had a Republican primary opponent, Kohler went to Eau Claire to speak for McCarthy."

Statewide, dairy prices and jobs are the predominant issues. There is definite, though not complete, dissatisfaction among farmers over the administration's farm price support program—a program to replace right, high level supports with flexible, sliding ones.

Sale Of Worthington Tract Completed

5,500 Acres Bought By New Jersey

TITLE TO A 5,500-acre recreation tract in Warren County was transferred to New Jersey yesterday by heirs of the Worthington Mower Co.'s founder.

The state paid $420,000 for the land, which lies in Pahaquarry Township, just across the Delaware River from Monroe County, and extending northward from Point of Gap.

The ceremony took place in the Trenton office of Dr. Joseph E. McLean, commissioner of the Department of Conservation and Economic Development in New Jersey.

Among those present were E. H. Worthington of East Stroudsburg, representing the six children of the man who founded Worthington Mower and built the Buckwood, now Shawnee Inn; Alex L. Eonsinger, attorney for the estate; Sackett M. Dickinson, deputy attorney general of New Jersey; Walter VanCampen, an East Stroudsburg property owner and caretaker on the huge recreational tract; and William H. McHugh of Douglas L. Elthman, Inc., New York Realty firm.

The deed itself was as massive as the tract—51 pages long, and taking an hour and a half to read aloud.

Gov. Robert B. Meyner has said the tract contains some of the state's best deer land, a good trout stream and several miles of wooded land along the Delaware.

"The land is a natural recreation area but it has not yet been decided how far we will go with its development," said McLean during the office ceremonies.

The property includes a lake 1-300 feet above sea level, 4.5 miles of uninterrupted river front, three islands in the Delaware, three miles of trout stream, a stand of timber and a game preserve begun by the founder.

There is some Lenni Lenape Indian lore connected with the tract, Mount Tammany. In the property, was named for the Indian chief Tamanend. The Minkink trail began at Minkink Island in the river and ran all the way to the sea.

Excavations in the 20th century indicated a considerable Indian population migrated along the trail each year to spend the summer on the Atlantic shore.

29-Degree Temperature Recorded Here

MONROE COUNTY was caught in the first cold snap of the season yesterday. The mercury sank to 29 degrees in Stroudsburg.

The low reading in Stroudsburg was reached sometime during the night, weather observer Pierre Lake said.

Lake said unofficial measurements showed an 8 a.m. reading of 39 degrees. The high for the day was 57 degrees. Temperature in Stroudsburg at 10:30 last night was 31 and dropping rapidly.

The low for Mount Pocono was also 29 degrees—an unusual occurrence since there is generally a 10-degree difference.

At the Mount Pocono weather station official instruments showed a high yesterday of only 48 degrees, according to Harry Greene, official observer at High Point.

Winds throughout the day measured about eight to 12 miles per hour, Greene said. It was a brittle 30 degrees—two degrees below freezing—last night at 8 at High Point.

Weather forecasts for the area indicated more of the same for last night and today. The cold spell was part of a general mercury drop which covered most areas of Eastern U. S.

Traces of snow fell in Pennsylvania, the Associated Press reported. It fell early yesterday morning in Potter County and at Philadelphia in Centre County. The latter community recorded the lowest overnight temperature—a bitter 23 degrees.

Other readings included Brookville, 26; Blairsville, 27; Warren, 27; Kittanning, 27, and Pittsburgh, 32. It was 35 in Hatherso and Willow Grove and 39 at Philadelphia and Harrisburg. This was only one degree warmer than the 38-degree record set for the date in Philadelphia in 1935.

Water Crisis Seems Solved At Portland

PORTLAND — This community's water supply, which was hard hit during the extended drought this summer, now appears to be adequate to satisfy the needs of a town much larger than Portland.

Dr. Howard Ott, chief burgess, announced late yesterday completion of an artesian well that flows at the rate of 150 gallons a minute. It will supplement the present supply.

The well is located at the Portland reservoir on a plateau at the foot of the mountain about three-fourths of a mile from Stateford and two miles from Portland.

Dr. Ott described the water as "very soft and pure" and added that it will be turned into the large concrete reservoir as soon as the necessary piping can be installed. Samples will be turned over to the State Department of Health for tests and approval, he said.

An Allentown firm which drilled the well estimated the 150-gallon-per-minute capacity sufficient to supply a community of 3,000 persons, Dr. Ott reported.

Second Division Returns To U.S.

SEATTLE, Oct. 7 (AP) — Remnants of the Second Division, which wrote a gallant Korea chapter to its long history, returned from the Far East today to a gala decade reception and a parade up this city's "Welcome Lane."

The Marine Phoenix brought home 1,059 men of the famed "Second to None" division. They are returning to Ft. Lewis, from where they were rushed to Korea in 1950 to help plug the wavering line around the "Panun Perimeter."

Thirty-five per cent of the returning men were in combat with the Second. Another 18 per cent saw Korean combat with other units.

Miss Anderson First Negro In Met Cast

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera said today Marian Anderson, famous American Negro contralto, has been signed to sing in an opera this winter, first Negro singer ever to appear with a Metropolitan cast.

Rudolf Bing, Metropolitan general manager, said Miss Anderson will sing the role of "Ulrica," a Negro fortune teller, in Verdi's "The Masked Ball" early in January.

"I'm very happy," said Miss Anderson. When a photographer asked for a smile to prove it, she complied, but added:

"The happiness is inside." It will be her first operatic role here or anywhere.

Bing said he had suggested the part to Miss Anderson when they were at a dinner together last month.

Miss Anderson, whose voice has been acclaimed throughout the United States and Europe, once was a cause celebre when the Daughters of the American Revolution in 1939 refused her the use of Constitution Hall on grounds that "all dates were taken."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt resigned from the DAR as a result. Subsequently Miss Anderson sang at an open air Easter concert at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C., to an audience of 75,000.

President Roosevelt invited her to sing at the White House when the late King George VI and Queen Elizabeth visited there.

Born of poor parents in Philadelphia Feb. 27, 1908, Miss Anderson began singing at the age of 6 in a church junior choir.

Salvation Army Stands Ready To Act As Friend

(This is the fourth in a series of stories based on actual work done by the 12 member agencies of your Community Chest. Each is devoted to one isolated case—but each is also typical of the valuable work done by all of the agencies. Today's story comes from the files of the Salvation Army. Names of persons and some of the events have been changed in all cases except those involving workers for the agency.)

By Leonard Randolph

THE HOUSE where Danny lived was a ramshackle hangover from another century.

Once proud and firm and white it had been the home of a powerful, respected man. Its broad hallway and long stairs had echoed with the sound of business argument (after hours) and the contented, high-pitched laughter of children.

This had been years ago, in another age when the community itself had been smaller and cleaner. Then, gradually, the area began to grow. As the century turned a new era started. The house was sold again and again.

Slowly the hub of business activity moved away from the neighborhood. Within a decade the house lost its facade of respectability. Shutters fell from the windows. They were not replaced. Paint peeled from the walls, leaving long, grey scars of weather on the wood.

Gradually the house became "home" to more and more families. They lived in small sections of the house, one or two rooms, doing their cooking, eating, laundry and sleeping often in the same small room.

Smoke from nearby factories clouded the street on still, overcast days. The smell of belching smoke mixed with the hundred odors of humanity, hanging like a heavy fog in each corner of the house.

Danny was one of 19 children living in the house. He was one of six children in one family, a family in which no children had been wanted in the first place.

To an outsider it became evident that the house where Danny lived was a small-sized community in its own right. Heavily over-populated, crowded to the point of filth, it seemed to stagger under the weight of its human load.

No one could say, rightfully, how long the house might stand. Only a few persons would have been willing to bet on the future of the human beings it housed.

At the moment there was no indication of future for Danny or his family, sitting in the corner of the room where he and his three sisters and two brothers slept. Danny could hear the slow, painful sound of his mother's voice in the next room.

"He's not a bad man, captain," his mother's voice said, and Danny knew they were talking about his father. "When he was young he didn't give anybody no trouble. He worked hard. Maybe he got drunk once in awhile. The voice choked and faded.

Danny could remember his father, the harsh, heavy voice thick with whiskey and the nights when his mother's voice rose to a scream to keep the tall man away from the children. Danny could remember other things—the purple blot on his arm where his father's hand had twisted his body; the grotesque blue puff which had hidden his mother's eye; the scream that had awakened him early in the morning when he had rushed out of the room to find his mother sobbing in the doorway; his father's long, swinging arms; the fists knotted until the knuckles were pale and white.

Danny hated his father with all the violence of his 14 years. The nights of terror, starting when the door swung shut and he heard his father's voice, had left a dark streak of anger and fear in Danny's mind.

Now, he knew, his father had done something wrong. Not just to his mother and to Danny, his oldest son, but to other people, to the community in which he lived.

"When Dan lost his job, he got drunk, too," the woman's voice began again. "He came home and we had a fight, like we always used to and then he left the house and I didn't see him for a month or more. When he walked back in the door last week, that was the first I'd seen of him."

"There's nothing much I can say about what happened while he was gone, captain, because I don't know. All I know is I was glad to have him back here and I thought everything was going to be all right. He was sober, for one thing."

"Then, the next day, they came and said they were arrestin' him and that he'd robbed a place," the voice stopped for a moment. "Then he was gone again."

"He hasn't denied the burglary, has he?" the male voice asked. "No. He said he did it, him and Allie and Swenson. Wouldn't he any good for him to deny it. They know who it was," Danny's mother said.

There was a long pause. Then the man's voice came again.

"I came tonight because I wanted you to know that we'll help in any way we can. You'll be able to get relief from the Department of Public Assistance for yourself and the kids. Until the checks begin to come we'll bring some food for you."

"Captain," Danny heard his mother say. "I guess maybe I ought to be ashamed to say this, but I've never been much for going to church and I've never cared too for you."

brought to the house. Then the back door closed. Danny could hear the steady thud of the captain's footsteps down the stairs. For a moment there was silence in the aging house. Then Danny heard the familiar sound of his mother crying.

But there was a different sound to the sobbing now. It seemed almost as though the voice had found a new strength and a new reason for crying. Danny thought of what he had heard. He felt a tightening in his own throat and for the first time in years he was not afraid to wake up in a new morning.

As his feet touched the last step in the flight of stairs, the man in the Salvation Army uniform stopped for a moment. From the rooms upstairs he could hear the sound of the woman crying.

The sobbing seemed to hold a note of relief, so the captain opened the outside door and stepped down to the sidewalk. He thought of the 14-year-old boy upstairs and the talk he had with his mother about Danny.

It would take time, they knew, but within a matter of months, Danny could be set on his way to responsibility. Tomorrow he would take the boy to the supermarket for a talk with the man who ran the store.

The manager had said he would be willing to give Danny a job on a trial basis. The captain had no doubt whatever that Danny would be one of the best workers the store had ever had.

From the outside the house loomed up like an ominous face, its somber frame stark and rotting in the harsh unreality of the moonlight. The captain remembered his first year as a Salvation Army worker when, for the first time, he had gone into the slums of a big city.

This is no big city, he thought now, yet the faces of the buildings are the same. The face of poverty never changes, he said, almost aloud. It was a measure of his love for his work, he knew, that he no longer felt depressed by the sights and smells and sounds of acute poverty.

Out of poverty, he had learned, can come a richness of spirit unlike any man can know. But the concern of the man in the Salvation Army must be with both the spirit and the flesh which houses it.

WORM CONDITION PULLETS NOW

Right now, just before you put your pullets in the laying house, is a good time to worm them. We recommend Purina Chek-R-Ton Granules, fed as the entire ration for two days only. This gets out almost every worm with no trouble and very little cost.

Another nice thing about worming with Chek-R-Ton is that it is a conditioner and appetizer as well as a wormer.

Bangor Juniors Plan Dance Revue, Square Dance

Bangor — The Bangor Junior Women's Club opened their season Monday night in the club rooms with the President, Mrs. Dominic DePaolo, in charge. It was announced that pupils of Johnny's School of Dance will present a dance revue on October 16 at 7:30 p. m. at the Roseto Public School and that the proceeds will go toward the club project, the children's playground at the Bangor Memorial Park.

The annual reciprocity dinner was announced and will be held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel in Stroudsburg on April 19 with the Bangor club as hostess.

A public square dance will be held on December 4 at the Blue Valley Farm Show Building, and a house-to-house canvass by members of the club will be conducted on November 23 for mentally retarded children.

Michael Koman of Reading, and a former teacher of Personal Relations at Temple University, spoke on "Is this the Answer?" He stressed the basic formula for getting along with people—kindness.

A preview of the dance revue was also given by three of the dance class. Miss Winifred Smith tap danced, with Drew Landry accompanying Lewis Sigman in an Indian Dance. Renee Bet favored with a novelty ballet.

Hostesses were Mrs. Raymond Parsons, chairman, and Mrs. James Pritchard, Mrs. Charles Williams, Mrs. Stanley Schade, Mrs. Theodore Schwanda, Mrs. Dominic DePaolo, and Mrs. David Price III.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Because you can't see anything but what's right under your nose, it often seems that all the funny things happen to people in town. Actually every section has its quiet chuckle over mishaps that happen in the best-regulated households.

Which is why it pays to read the correspondent's copy with more than a casual eye.

Otherwise, we might miss the story about the woman in Tannersville who was baking a sponge cake. Right in the middle of the baking, the bottled gas ran out. Nothing daunted, she snatched the cake from its cozy warm oven, trotted across her own large lawn and that of a neighbor and popped it into the neighbor's oven.

What's more the cake was as good as ever and didn't "fall" at all. Which might be a lesson to those of us who go tiptoeing around while the cake's in the oven. What I'm wondering about, though, is what the neighbor's family said when they came home to find the house all filled with the odor of baking and the source of the odor all gone.

There's more about food-like the cryptic note from the Willing Workers of Hamilton. Members are requested NOT to bring a covered dish, which is a new way. They must be willing workers if they're going to insist on bringing their own refreshments.

And how about that committee in Poplar Valley whose sole duty it is to buy wedding gifts? That's a teaser, too. Wedding gifts for whom? For a specific bride, for possible future brides among the members, or just any old wedding?

And speaking of gifts, Mrs. Grace Hallet, who is progressing so well that she expects to be able to come home soon, will see some changes when she does: a new bathroom and lots of new improvements in the kitchen.

Dr. Blakeslee Recalls Years In Kenya, Africa

Cherry Valley — Memories of 43 years in the Kenya Colony in Africa were recalled by Dr. Virginia Blakeslee, returned missionary in the Cherry Valley Church on Monday night.

Dr. Blakeslee, a native of this section, worked with the Kikuyu tribe. Describing the cruelty of the Mau Mau troops that finally drove the missionaries out of the colony, she shared with the group her conviction that the Christian faith of the converted natives was so strong that they would rather die than return to a pagan religion.

She told stories of the early opposition of the witch doctors and ignorant leaders, and of the strength and courage of the converts. She also told what the gifts of money from local organization had meant during her ministry, and challenged the audience to have the same strong and simple faith as the natives.

She told of the building of the Nairobi Hospital and how she had studied medicine by night and practiced by day to keep up with new developments in the world outside. At present, she is writing a book of her experiences, she revealed.

The Cherry Valley WSCS was host to the group, and Mrs. Andrew Keiser, president, preside. Devotions were led by members of St. Luke's Church and refreshments were served during the social hour which followed the meeting.

OPEN LETTER

Dear Betty Frantz,
Your boss, Fran Meredith, just dropped into the office to tell me he's going away on vacation Monday and expects that you will be hobbling around, decorating the store during his absence—if your toe is out of its sling, that is.

He also tells me that you missed a tremendously interesting experience the other day when the display department was visited by 30 students of Dr. Eugene Oxendier's audio-visual class of State Teachers College. Fran found them to be highly intelligent young men and women, who asked fascinating questions, and seemed to enjoy the tour of our front windows, interior displays and studio.

Fran, you know, always refers to our windows as "The eyes of the store" . . . and he explained his problems and objectives in the setting up of "expressive eyes" that really catch and hold the attention of passersby, and draw them into Wyckoff's to buy. He talked about the proper use of color as a selling point for merchandise too. It sounds like a wonderfully enlightening visit, doesn't it?

Later everyone met in the Tea Room where refreshments were served. You would have shown there, I imagine—or are you dieting, now that your foot has you on the inactive list?

Joan Decker sends her best wishes. Every once in awhile I jump into her somewhere in the store, carrying an armful of velvet hats as bright as autumn leaves, or a few signs. She says she misses you—so do the rest of us.

The mail today brought me a very impressive letter with the crest of the Hotel Maurice in Paris, and a lot of

Descendants To Mark Grave Of Gearhart

ON THE 200th anniversary of the arrival of J. Nicholas Gearhart in America his descendants will erect a monument at his grave in Boehm's Church Cemetery in Blue Bell, Montgomery County.

Many of the descendants are natives and residents of the Monroe County area. The monument will be dedicated Sunday at 3 p.m.

Members of the committee in charge of the monument erection have issued the following instructions for reaching Blue Bell:

Go to Allentown. From Allentown proceed south on Route 309 to Route 202; turn right and go to Center Square, a distance of about seven miles. At the square, turn left and continue for one mile to Blue Bell. The church beside which Gearhart was buried is visible from the Blue Bell Inn.

Several Monroe Counties are expected to attend the dedication ceremony. Following the services members of the family group will have dinner at Trainer's Restaurant in Quakertown.

Gearhart's grave has been unmarked since his burial. He arrived in this country on Oct. 1, 1754. A more complete story of his life and descendants will be carried in Monday's "Pennsylvania Week" edition of The Daily Record.

Girl Fan Gives Tito Black Eye

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 7. — Yugoslav Tito turned up before the Yugoslav Federal Executive Council today with a black eye. He wore a black patch over his right eye.

Aides explained he had been struck by a bunch of flowers tossed at him by an enthusiastic young girl while he was riding through Sarajevo yesterday in an open car.

Tomorrow's football game between East Stroudsburg and Shippensburg, to be played on the former's home field, is the number one contest of the week as far as the Pennsylvania State Teachers College Conference is concerned. The eyes and ears of the entire conference will be trained on Normal Hill. More advance requests for newspaper and wire service coverage for this game have been received than for any other ever played at ESSTC, at least since this scribe began pounding the local sports beat eight years ago.

Shippensburg will bring a winning streak of 19 straight games into the area. The streak is reportedly the longest of any college east of the Mississippi. Spencer Keyes, highly rated Negro back, is the man the Warriors must stop if they hope to halt the winning habit of the Red Raiders. Keyes is the talk of the state and rightfully so, as he has played brilliant football the past two seasons.

Another Shippensburg player to be watched in Don Bickel, who punted the ball 70 yards in one play against Lock Haven in the opening game of the current campaign. While visiting the practice field on Normal Hill yesterday it was evident that the Warriors were in the process of preparing for something big. There was very little horse-play, with a quiet air of seriousness dominating the practice ground. This is actually the first tough foe to face East Stroudsburg this season.

A victory tomorrow could put the Warriors in good shape for the remainder of the campaign, providing not too many key players are injured. A win over Shippensburg would be the best mental lift possible for the gridgers from ESSTC. It is also quite possible that the largest crowd to witness a grid battle on Normal Hill in recent years may be on hand for tomorrow's contest, especially since both high schools are playing out of town.

The grapevine reveals that the Lehigh football squad may have a new look by the time it squares off against East Stroudsburg High tomorrow night, at Lehigh. Several new faces will be in the Lehigh lineup and the squad reportedly is near peak in the spirit department. One of the area bowling establishments isn't seeing eye-to-eye with some of the leagues rolling on its alleys at the present time. East Stroudsburg High finished off its fine press box with the installation of a telephone this week.

Ray Steele, former East Stroudsburg High basketball and baseball star, won 13 games for Drummondville, of the class "C" Provincial League this season, after losing six of his first seven outings. Ray pitched in virtually every game of the two post-season playoff series involving Drummondville and was saddled with seven decisions. The decisions included four victories and three setbacks. Ray would like very much to play some winter baseball, although definite decisions haven't been made to date.

According to Merle Agnello, official statistician for the Pennsylvania State Teachers College Conference, West Chester State Teachers College plans to spend $3,000 more than its estimated gate receipts during the current football season. Mike Ronaldo, former Bangor High and Fordham University football and baseball star, dropped this scribe a card from Heidelberg, Germany, where he is currently stationed with the Army.

Ronaldo, a resident of Roseto, is playing and coaching the line of the Headquarters Area Command football team. Mike formerly played with the Roseto baseball entry in the Blue Mountain League. Forest Cory, Daily Record printer, is scheduled to take part in a sweepstakes golf tournament sponsored by the Penn-Jersey Golf Association at Paunsaugen, N. J., on Sunday. The tournament will be played on the Iron Rock Country Club course. Dick Gray will handle the East Stroudsburg High quarterback position in the absence of Bill Sommers, who suffered a "chipped" bone in his left ankle at Bangor last Friday.

East Stroudsburg Junior High Invades Pen Argyl

Cavaliers To Launch Grid Season

EAST Stroudsburg Junior High School will play its first football game of the present campaign today when the charges of Coach Les Dimmick battle Pen Argyl, on the latter's home field at Weona Park.

The kickoff is slated to take place at 3:30 p.m. Dimmick will be making his first appearance at the helm of the junior Cavaliers in several years. Dimmick came out of coaching retirement this season to head the football destinies of Eastburg Junior High once again.

The Cavaliers were forced to cancel their first two scheduled games of the present grid campaign when Whitehall and Lehigh were unable to field teams by the time stipulated on the schedule.

Dimmick announced last night that his starting backfield today would be made up of Evan Reese, quarterback; Larry Smith, left halfback; Vic Ajcyn, right half, and Bob Angle, fullback.

Also virtually certain of seeing action today are Sedge Henning, end; Charley Lupin, quarterback; Peter Lesiuk, halfback; Harry Foreman, tackle; Russell Marsh, guard, and John Vlechnick, guard. Dimmick is being assisted in football at the present time by Paul Morton, a new teacher at East Stroudsburg Junior High.

Hellertown To Drop Foes

leage decided by a 7-1 vote, with Parkland not voting. Fountain Hill cast the opposing vote.

Hellertown announced that it will discontinue football games with several league members next season. School officials announced that they would inform the schools to be effected by the move in person.

Five new coaches were introduced to the group. They included Joe Amoroso, assistant football coach, and Bob Rogers, head basketball coach, both of Nazareth; Dick Wolford, assistant football mentor, and Ed Palmer, head basketball coach, both of Pen Argyl, and Dick DiGiacomo, assistant football coach at Hellertown.

Representing East Stroudsburg High at the meeting were Ralph O. Burrows, principal, and Kist, Forster, Jacobella and Hastie, Bangor's representatives included Trevor Williams, principal; Granville Evans, head football coach; Paul Wagner, junior varsity grid mentor; Paul LaBar, faculty athletic manager; Arnold Wynne, guidance teacher, and Heard.

The next meeting will be held at Nazareth, in the YMCA, on Thursday, December 2.

Giants Receive Record Shares Of $11,147.90 From Series

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP)—Twenty-eight players on the New York Giants plus their trainer and their clubhouse attendant received a record $11,147.90 each for winning the World Series.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick announced the breakdown today for 327 players and club personnel on eight teams who participated in the all-time high in World Series money.

A full Giants' share was $2,867.22 more than the previous record payoff to the New York Yankees in 1953. It was $4,435.40 more than a full share of the losing Cleveland Indians.

The Cleveland share was $6,712.50 each, a record for a loser. The Indians cut their melon into 35 1/2 shares (34 full shares, 1 half share and 4 quarter shares) and also gave out $8,600 in cash. The Giants divided 32 1/6 shares (30 full shares, 3 half shares and 2 one-third shares) and doted out $11,750 in gifts.

In all the players' share of the total World Series receipts was a record $881,763.72, including $83,000 for a pre-game television program. The previous high was $691,341.61 last year.

The players get 60 per cent of the receipts of the first four games. Of this 70 per cent goes to the participating teams, 15 per cent to the teams which finished second, 10 per cent to the third place teams and 5 per cent to the fourth place finishers.

Speculation immediately after the Series that the winning share would be worth slightly more than $10,000 apparently was based on a larger number of full share splits of the Giant jackpot.

The second place Brooklyn Dodgers gave 31 1/2 shares worth $2,102.43 each. The second place Yankees gave 35 5/12 shares worth $1,768.43 each.

The third place Milwaukee Braves gave 36 full shares, each worth $1,227.67. Frick said he believed it was the first time a club had avoided fractions completely in splitting the loot and had given everybody concerned exactly the same amount.

On the third place Chicago White Sox, 36 shares were worth $1,224.67 each and were divided among 40 players and personnel.

The fourth place Philadelphia Phillies split 34 shares among 37 men, giving Steve O'Neill, who managed the club the first half of the season, and Terry Moore, each full shares of $648.36.

On the fourth place Boston Red Sox 37 full shares were worth $595.79 each and were divided 44 ways.

The Giant bonanza included a full share to bonus rookie Joe Amalfitano who didn't appear at bat during the season until the final week, and a half share to Paul Giel, the Minnesota football star who joined the club in June with a $50,000 bonus.

Daryl Spencer, a regular infielder with the Giants during 1953 who spent this season in the Army, was given a $2,000 cash grant. Billy Martin, the Yanks' World Series star of last year, was given $500 in cash by his mates, even though he was recalled into the Army during spring training.

Minor Leagues Still Seeking Financial Aid

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP)—The National League is riding high with its first World Series winner since 1946 and the American League shows a healthy increase at the gate, despite its lack of balance. But the minors are crying the blues.

In the hilarity of the World Series press room at Cleveland there was a somber note. George Trautman, head of the minors, wore a serious expression as he huddled with Clarence Rowland, president of the Pacific Coast League.

"This is a very serious situation," said Rowland to a reporter. "We are in a fight for our lives and too few people realize it." Trautman echoed his words, adding, "We need all the help we can get."

"You fellows are all excited about a fellow named Dusty Rhodes. That's fine, just as it should be. But did you ever stop to think that he came out of the minor leagues, and not any semi-pro industrial league or college?" "It's the same story with most of the players in the Series. If it wasn't for the minors, they wouldn't be here today. You can name on the fingers of one hand, the Hall of Fame members who didn't play in the minors."

Trautman was right, of course. The backbone of the majors always has been the minors, class "D" and "C" in particular, where the boys learn their trade. The only members of the New York Giants who didn't come up through the minors were Johnny Antonelli, who got $65,000 bonus from Boston, and Joe Amalfitano and Paul Giel, the bonus kids who never got into the Series lineup.

The minors have been drying up fast. Several that operated in 1954 probably won't try again. The De-mension meetings at Houston promise plenty of fireworks.

Even before the meetings, the fireworks have started. Frank Lawrence, owner of the Portsmouth, Va., club of the Piedmont League for almost 40 years, is preparing to sue the majors for 50 million dollars, claiming they had invaded minor league territory with radio and television versions of their games.

About the same time the story of the 50-million dollar suit leaked out in the papers, representatives of the major league farm systems met with Trautman trying to work out a plan of aid for the minors.

Nobody would say just what they worked out, but it was reported the big league teams would give more direct aid to clubs with which they had working agreements. That would include paying part of the payroll, transportation expenses, spring training and higher fees for purchased players.

Whatever the answer, there is no question about the minors being in for a rough ride. To a fellow who doesn't claim to know all the answers, it would seem obvious there can be no majors without the minors.

Grid Boss Issues Warning

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7 (AP)—National Football League Commissioner Bert Bell today sent a directive to referees and coaches in the pro league "reemphasizing" the rules governing rough play.

The directive, which Bell ordered read by referees to their crew of officials and by coaches to players, said:

"Any use of the forearm, elbows or knees shall be penalized under the unnecessary roughness rule and any striking of an opponent or malicious unnecessary roughness shall be penalized under the same rule and the player disqualified. The referee shall read the above to members of his crew and the coaches shall read the same to his players."

The directive was an outgrowth of last Sunday's 24-24 tie game between the San Francisco 49ers and the Los Angeles Rams. Forty-Niners' supporters charged that dirty play by the Rams resulted in injuries to two of their players which will leave the players on the sideline for the rest of the season.

Commercial 'C' Rolls

COMMERCIAL "C" League Keglers swing into action at Harmon's Recreation today at 9:15 p.m. Schedule follows:

Alleys one and two—Regina Hotel vs. Worthington Mover.

Alleys three and four—Tru-Matic vs. Cole's Drug Store.

Alleys five and six—Kreamee Ice Cream vs. Lanterman's Funeral Home.

Johnson Set To Make Settlement With Yanks

CHICAGO, Oct. 7 (AP)—Arnold Johnson, Chicago banker-realtor, said today he would pay the New York Yankees a "reasonable amount" for their Kansas City territory if he is able to buy the Philadelphia A's and shift the club to the midwestern city.

The Yankees, whose principal farm club, the Blues of the American Association, play in Kansas City, earlier today threatened to block the proposed switch of the A's unless the payment was adequate for territorial rights.

Sale of the A's reaches a showdown stage at a meeting of league owners here Tuesday.

Johnson, already aware the Washington Senators and Detroit Tigers are on record as opposing the A's shift, declined to state what he would regard as an adequate payment to the Yankees.

Six of the eight league clubs must approve a franchise shift. "I have known right along I must make restitution to the Yankees and to the American Association," said Johnson. "I intend to be fair about it."

Dan Topping, Yankee president, has pointed out that Baltimore of the International League received between $300,000 and $350,000 when the St. Louis Browns were shifted to that city a year ago.

Topping qualified his statement concerning territorial compensation with the comment it should not be interpreted as opposition to the A's transfer.

"I will say that we have set next Tuesday as a deadline for this move," Topping told the Kansas City Star by telephone from New York. "If nothing happens then, we believe we should go ahead with building the Blues for Kansas City next year."

Former Stroudsburg Girl Wins Jersey Archery Crown

MRS. ARTHUR RASMUSSEN, Old Bridge, N. J., recently won the New Jersey Field Archery Championship for women during a match held at Union, N. J. Several hundred people took part in the one-day contest.

Harlan Upsets Best Trotters In Country

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 7 (AP)—Harlan, an "unsound" colt and rank outsider, beat the best three-year-old trotters in the land today to win the 62nd renewal of the Kentucky Futurity in straight heats.

The son of Bill Galion, an off and on campaigner since finishing second in one heat of the Hambletonian, was an easy winner in both heats of today's $64,410 grand finale of the Grand Circuit.

Pronto Boy was second in both heats and his stablemate, Darn Safe, second choice in the betting. He was third by finishing third in the second heat after coming in fifth in the first heat.

The odds-on favorite, Prince Victor, took third place in the first heat, but broke stride and finished seventh in the nine-horse field in the second heat to take fourth money.

Harlan's victory was worth $34,717, more than doubling his lifetime earnings.

Golf Architect Dies

ALBUQUERQUE, N. Mex., Oct. 7 (AP)—William H. Tucker, 83, architect of 115 golf courses in the U. S. and Europe, died unexpectedly last night. In addition to his fame as a golf architect, Tucker also supervised the placing of the turf in Yankee Stadium, Princeton's Palmer Stadium and at the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills.

Mrs. Rasmussen is the former Evelyn Bertucci, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bertucci Sr., 1189 W. Main St., Stroudsburg.

The former Stroudsburg resident, now a member of the Wa-Xo-Be Archers, New Brunswick, N. J., shot a 335 score for the title.

Action took place at the Watchung Bowmen field course, Union, N. J.

The men's state champion, crowned on the same day, is Walter Cox, of the Musconetcong Bowmen of Morristown, who shot a 585 score.

New Measures Put Stress On Trust In God

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP)—Back in the pit of the depression in 1931, the United States declared officially: "In God is our trust."

Today, with other troubles confronting the nation, the government has added new emphasis to the motto.

It has, for the first time, set aside a prayer room in the national Capitol.

It has made "under God" a part of the pledge to the flag.

It has provided a new pension system and tax benefits for clergymen.

It has put the words, "In God We Trust," on 3-cent stamps.

It has weighed proposals for even more specific action affirming national religious faith.

All these things came in this year's session of Congress, which mark it as a sort of watershed for legislation related to God.

Government action in this realm always has been a touchy business in this country, and some of the new steps didn't come without murmurs of anxiety.

Most of the new legislation was generally acceptable to major church bodies.

"The state must not be godless," commented the Lutheran, a church magazine. "It must be neutral toward both Christians and Jews, but it cannot be neutral toward God."

Although history bulges with rulers and empires that traced their authority to God, this country's Constitution bars any laws "respecting an establishment of religion."

The idea has been interpreted as keeping the state separate from religion, so that every man's way of worship, if any, will be entirely up to him and not the lawmakers.

But on occasions, as at present, the government has sought to express its reliance on a higher power. Usually, this has been in time of stress.

The first occasion was in the Declaration of Independence, which voiced recognition of "our Creator" as the source of human rights.

In the unrest following the Civil War, the Federal Mint first began stamping the motto, "In God We Trust," on U.S. coins.

This was done, not by legislation, but by a directive from Treasury Secretary Salmon P. Chase, on suggestion of a Pennsylvania pastor. The practice has continued since.

In the economically bleak days of 1931, Congress officially adopted Francis Scott Key's century-old "Star Spangled Banner" as the official national anthem, with its declaration:

"Let this be our motto, In God is our trust."

Among the 1954 federal moves concerning religion, the only one drawing major opposition was an unsuccessful proposal by Sen. Ralph Flanders (R-Vt.) to amend the Constitution to acknowledge "the authority and law of Jesus Christ."

Declared the nondenominational Christian Century:

"What enactment of such an amendment would do . . . to guarantee religious freedom . . . and to relations between religious groups in this country, the mind can scarcely comprehend."

For dry or oily hair this rich-lathering, all-purpose famous shampoo. A better buy . . . and best for the family hair!

the Ogilvie Sisters say:

"YOU CAN KEEP THE
WEATHER FROM PUTTING A
DAMPER ON YOUR HAIR"

HOW?

We know that humidity can leave your hair droopy, the ends wispy, that an unmanageable hairdo can spoil a well-planned day. So we've created a new multi-purpose hair spray that laughs at the weather. It's LANO-SET, the first and only hair spray with the Anti-Humidity Factor "S"! We lashed it with precious lanolin to groom your hair, keep it softly in place just as you set it, no matter how moist the air! LANO-SET is wonderful for all types of hair—we've tested so many, particularly damaged hair. Spray it on sparingly—after your shampoo as a wave-set, as daily grooming—we're sure you'll love the way it keeps your hair beautifully soft, lustrous, full of life!
